

DIRECT SELLING

Ray Quinney & Nebeker represents a wide array of clients in the direct selling or network marketing industry. Our lawyers help direct selling companies with all of their legal needs, including drafting policies and procedures and distributor agreements, working on all other agreements and documents necessary for a direct selling business, litigation, government relations, intellectual property and all other necessary matters. Ray Quinney & Nebeker lawyers represent direct selling companies of all types and sizes, from startups to the most established names in the direct selling industry.

LITIGATION AND ENFORCEMENT

Ray Quinney & Nebeker lawyers represent direct selling companies in all kinds of litigation in state and federal courts and arbitration proceedings throughout the United States and internationally. Our lawyers have obtained injunctions to prevent the violation of contractual and other obligations. Our lawyers have also represented distributors in disputes with direct selling companies. We understand all of the litigation issues that arise in the direct selling industry.

TRANSACTIONS

Ray Quinney & Nebeker lawyers assist direct selling companies with all of their transactional needs. We help direct selling companies draft policies and procedures, distributor agreements, and other relevant documents. We work with direct selling companies on a wide variety of other transactions, including corporate organization and structuring, complex real estate transactions, venue transactions for conventions and other significant events, and all other issues that arise in the direct selling industry.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

Ray Quinney & Nebeker lawyers assist direct selling companies with all of their intellectual property needs. We help direct selling companies prosecute patents, trademarks, and copyrights and protect their trade secrets and confidential information.
