

PATENT PROSECUTION

Ray Quinney & Nebeker's registered patent attorneys have extensive experience developing and securing vital patent assets for our clients. We represent companies of all sizes, from Fortune® 100 multinationals to innovative start-ups. This experience helps us tailor our advice to achieve our clients' strategic goals, such as creating barriers to market entry, obtaining licensing revenue, or obtaining defensive coverage.

Our attorneys have strong technical and scientific backgrounds that enable us to quickly and efficiently understand the details of our clients' technologies. We draft patent applications strategically and cost-effectively, focusing on our clients' interests and business objectives. We are creative and proactive in our approach to patent prosecution, often meeting face-to-face with patent examiners. In addition to drafting and prosecuting patent applications, we also assist clients with appeals and post-grant proceedings, provide analysis and advice regarding competitors' patents and products, prepare invalidity and non-infringement opinions, craft license agreements for your intellectual property, and perform due diligence for business transactions.

Whether you are just beginning to create a patent portfolio or you would like assistance with growing and shaping the one you already have, our team has both the technical knowledge and legal experience to develop successful technology protection strategies and help you achieve the highest returns for your business.
